

MONTANA STUDENTS SPEAK OUT!

Join the conversation about supporting student wellness in Montana! We want to hear from students to better understand their experiences and hear their recommendations to improve in-school supports for student mental health and wellness.

We want to hear from you!

We are currently seeking youth video submissions to elevate Montana student voices. We will gather video submissions and bring the voices of Montana students to the forefront of the important discussions and activities to support Montana students. Student video submissions will be combined with others and shared widely with schools, health providers, and decision-makers from across the state. Our goal is to assure every Montana student is safe and well!

How to get started: To make a submission, you must be a Montana student between the ages of 14 and 19 years old. Students may submit individual videos or work on a group video with friends. To get started, fill out this google form to let us know about your interest.

Have something to say but not interested in being on camera? We also have the option to submit written responses through this google form.

We strive to put students first by working closely with students, parents/caregivers, and schools. For more information about our student voice work, check out our School Safety Student Voice webpage.

Please contact Michele Henson, School Safety Program Manager at the Office of Public Instruction, with any questions: michele.henson@mt.gov or 406-595-1058