

Featured Speaker

Workshops: Using Data to Analyze Problems at Tiers 1 and 2, What to Do When the Intervention Didn't Work: Solving Problems at Tier 3, and Montana's Dyslexia Law

Dr. Matthew K. Burns is the College of Education Herbert H. Schooling Professor and a Professor of Special Education at the University of Missouri.

Dr. Burns has published over 200 articles and book chapters in national publications, and has co-authored or co-edited 15 books. Dr. Burns is one of the leading researchers regarding the use of assessment data to determine individual or small-group interventions, and has published extensively on response to intervention, academic interventions, and facilitating problem-solving teams.