

Featured Speaker

Workshops: Adapting MTSS for High School Success and Establishing Buy-in for Schoolwide Interventions in Secondary Schools

Hank Bohanon, PhD, is currently a professor in the School of Education at Loyola University of Chicago, where he served as co-program chair of the Teaching and Learning Program and Acting Associate Dean for Research. His current research includes three-tiered academic and behavior supports in secondary settings. Specifically, his work focuses on connecting multi-tiered support systems with school improvement strategies. Hank also studies online instruction in pre-service teaching and in-service professional development.